Ballou's Magazine for 1878.

The many improvements which will be made in BALLOU'S MAGAZINE for the coming year will commend themselves to our patrons without any attempt at laudation on our part. It will be in every respect a family magazine, as in the past, and will cater to the best feelings of the community, and not to the worst, like some of the journals of the day. By such careful attention we hope to continue to merit the liberal patronage which has always been bestowed on BALLOU'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE, now nearly twenty-five years before the public, and a favorite wherever it is known. It will be carefully edited, none but the best class of stories will be admitted to its columns, while the engravings will be fresh and varied, and the scientific and historical articles will be prepared by some of the most eminent writers in the country. In short, we shall do all in our power to make our Magazine a necessity in every family of refinement and culture in the country.

The January number will contain the first installment of a powerful serial, which will be finished in four numbers of the Magazine; and it is intended that there shall be but one continued serial, except the children's story, and that all will be closed in the following December number, so that the Magazine can be bound and preserved for future reading.

Our terms will be the same as for the past year, $1.50 per year, postpaid, and clubs will be supplied at the low rates found on the cover-page.
